QUEEN'S HIGHWAY

NORFOLK, Va.—This 3.3-mile trestle leading to a man-made island in Chesapeake Bay, will become a royal road April 26 when International Azalea Festival Queen Margaret Ann Goldwater becomes the first woman to ride across it. The trestle is the first link in the $200,000,000 Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel which will span 17.5 miles of water between the Norfolk area and the Delmarva Peninsula. Margaret Ann is the 18-year-old daughter of Arizona Senator Barry Goldwater.

Crops — Like Cars — Need The Right Kind of Fuel

When your car fails—you can't always blame the weather. Chances are, it's either something wrong under the hood, or you've run out of gas.

Similarly, when farm production drops, or the products aren't up to par, or the plants appear to be diseased, very often the cause is under the soil or due to a shortage of some vital nutrients.

In recent years, more and more problems have been traced by research agronomists to deficiencies of magnesium. But symptoms of the deficiencies have for years been blamed on other causes.

DISEASE OR DEFICIENCY?

"Sand drown" is a good example. This "disease" of tobacco plants was commonly associated with acid sandy soils, but in 1942, scientists established the fact that the problem was actually due to a magnesium deficiency.

Potatoes are another example, where a number of maladies have been traced to magnesium inefficiencies. Both firmness and texture of potatoes are affected by the amounts of magnesium available to the growing plants.

One important function of magnesium that has been illustrated in potatoes and other vegetables is that it makes phosphorous more readily available to the plant, says Dr. J. C. Hoglbous, manager of agricultural services for International Minerals & Chemical Corporation.

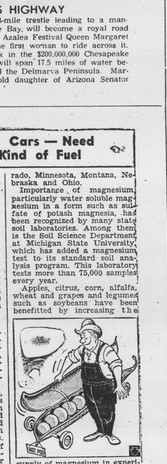
MORE PEAS PER POD

Researchers at the University of Wisconsin found that magnesium was the only nutrient element that tended to influence the number of peas in a pod. They followed this with the explanation that increased phosphorous uptake was probably responsible for the increased yield, and that the magnesium made the phosphorous more readily available to the plant.

And sugar beet yields have been substantially increased by the application of water soluble magnesium to sandy or sandy-loam soils in California, Colorado, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska and Ohio.

Importance of magnesium, particularly water soluble magnesium in a form such as sulfate of potash magnesia, had been recognized by many state soil laboratories. Among them is the Soil Science Department at Michigan State University, which has added a magnesium test to its standard soil analysis program. This laboratory tests more than 75,000 samples every year.

Apples, citrus, corn, alfalfa, wheat and grapes and legumes such as soybeans have been benefitted by increasing the supply of magnesium in experimental cultures and later in commercial orchards, gardens and on farms.



In many areas, dolomitic limestone is used to sweeten the soils, but in this material, magnesium is in an insoluble form, and often takes a long time to get to the plant.

A more immediately available form—that can be applied directly or in a mixed fertilizer—is sulfate of potash magnesia.

Magnesium compares to the oil or gasoline in automobiles because it is the central atom of chlorophyll—the green material that enables plants to grow.

Most important aspect of sulfate of potash magnesia is the fact that it offers an immediate cure for deficiencies, much as a quick trip to the repair shop or another gallon of gasoline will for a car.

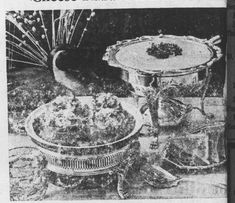
Cheese Rabbit A Real Treat



The cheese rabbit holds a distinctive position as a meal although it originally came to being in a different way. It that it first became known as a "rabbit" when unexpected dropped in on a hunter while he was cooking game he had that day. To stretch the short meat supply, he added a cup of melted cheese and told his guests that they were being "Welsh Rabbit." Some however, prefer to call it a "ra Call it what you will, but for best results follow this Kitchen recipe accurately. Serve immediately over golden toast points. To round out the menu, serve baked red-ripe toes stuffed with canned mushrooms.

Dinner Special Rabbit
(Makes six ½-cup servings)

½ cup hot water

County Rescue Squad Is Granted Charter

Appomattox County Rescue Squad has received notification that it is rated with 32 members. The squads Corporation Commission has been accepted. The Squad was chartered with 32 members. The Squad has also been accepted into the Virginia Association of Rescue Squads which coordinates the efforts of all the squads throughout the State.

Captain K. W. Jamerson stated that 32 members, all have been graduated from both Standard and Advance First Aid Courses. These members are trained to render immediate first aid care if and when called on. To clarify this point further, Captain Jamerson quoted the definition of First Aid as being "The immediate and temporary care given to the victim of an accident or sudden illness until the services of a physician can be obtain."

With the funds raised in the county, the Squad is now equipped with one vehicle, having 2 oxygen units, one being designed to resuscitate, inhalate, and aspirate, two stretchers, one complete first aid kit and splints. Each member is equipped with a first aid kit in order to be in a position to treat emergency should it not be advisable to use the ambulance. The Squad is now able to offer to bed stricken patients the conveniences of hospital beds which can be obtained at no cost to the patient By contacting an officer of the Squad. Captain Jamerson requested, with apologies from the Squad, that, because of having only one vehicle in service at this time, that all transportation calls to and from hospitals that are not defined as emergencies be referred to the private ambulance service available in Appomattox. This will enable the squad's ambulance to be available for emergency calls.

The members are located throughout Appomattox County so learn that member's names and phone number nearest you. He or she could save your life.

Plans are now underway to secure land and erect a building in or near the coopersate limits. This will expedite the service now being given by having the ambulance more accessable to the main highways.

The Squad would like to publicly express its appreciation to, the individuals who have contributed so much of their time and money to make our dream a reality. To Moses Motor Co, for its assistance in obtaining our vehicle and to Appomattox Hardware Co. for allowing us storage space for stationary equipment and to Transcontinental Gas Corp. who has opened their doors to us. Not only do their operators receive and dispatch our calls, offer parking space for our vehicle, but the interest shown by the men and the supervision thereby has been inspiring to us all.

Remember, this is your Squad, your equipment. Its sole purpose is to serve you.
